

Elena Haddad leads strategy and development within Palantir's renewables team. She joined Palantir's Commercial Business Development team in 2019 and has led teams to implement product solutions across a number of industries including aviation, healthcare, life sciences, emergency relief and renewable energy. Elena earned an MEng in Environmental Engineering from University College London and an MPhil in Engineering for Sustainable Development from the University of Cambridge.