

Nicola Rossi is Head of Innovation at Enel Green Power and Thermal Generation. His responsibilities include identifying and ensuring implementation of innovation projects at global level on the overall value chain (Business Development, Engineering and Construction, Operation and Maintenance).

His expertise covers power generation, energy storage, digital technologies, circular economy, start-ups and open innovation management.

Mr. Rossi is graduated in Chemical Engineering at the University of Pisa (Italy) and he participated in executive management courses at international business schools: SDA Bocconi, IESE and Harvard University. He has been managing international teams for several years and is board member of a number of international research organizations in Europe and US.